MAH SYSTEM: Chess Theories of Bubba, S.C.'s Unofficial Traylor Park Chess Champion By Chris Mulligan

Howdy! Yep, you guessed it. It's me again, Bubba. Furst of all, Ah'd like to apologomize to all of ya'll that's been lookin' foreward to mah annotated game with mah baby girl, Bubbette. It apeers ah wont be able to bring ya'll that there game after all. The mane reason bein' that it woodn't live up to the high quality standards of the material ah'm bringin' to ya'll. Then of course, thar is the fact that mah missus mentioned in passin' that it'd get awful cold an' lonely sleepn' on the couch if'n ah humiliatated our baby girl in print. Boy, that thar missus shore is a kiddier ain't she? Hah, Hah, yep, well, uh..., anyway ah reckon ah'll get on with the edumacational stuff now.

To start off with, ah reckon ah'll take a step back furst and go over sum of the basics (Yes, Drill Sarjant! Hah, Hah, that thar was a little joke. Get it, basics-Drill Sarjant...yep, well, uh...) since it's came to mah attentun that jumping rite in lak ah did kinda went over sum of yore heads. Furst, let's talk about the object of the game. Now how many of ya'll think that it's to checkmate yore opponment's King? WRONG!! Ah'm sik an tard of heering' that! The object is to WIN!! Now let's look at an example. Say fore instance that yore planin' an important match with a strong opponent. Now let's say he get's up to go to the outhouse. Now let's go one step further, and say for instance you move, hit the clock, an' yore opponent meets with an unfortunate huntin' accident while comin' back from the john. Tragic? Yes, but you won! An' lak ah said, that's the important thing.

Well, ah reckon tha's all ah got the time for this go-around. As always it was a plesure. Thank's for reading, and ah'll see ya'll again next time.

By Mike Sailer

1989 Denker High School Tournament of National Champions

Jesse Kraai (New Mexico) 2179

Mike Sailer (North Dakota) 2031

It is always more fun to annotate one of your "brilliant" victories to impress your chess peers. However, I've found throughout my chess career that I learn more from my losses. This game was the most frustrating loss I ever played. The setting was in Chicago, IL, I won my first round game against the Texas champion and faced Jesse Kraai in the second round. I always wondered if I had won this game, would I have won the tournament? Now I know this sounds far-fetched, but the top seeds in the tournament, James Schuyler (NY) and Robby Adamson (AZ) were upset early in the tournament and weren't factors in the later rounds. As it turned out, the top three finishers were Jesse Kraai and two other low experts. I was playing my best chess in quite some time, and perhaps the momentum from this game could have given me the extra "push" I needed to win some games against stronger opposition. As it turned out, I lost to Jesse and finished tenth. Although I published this game in October 1989's newsletter, I didn't annotate the game, partly due to my frustration, but mainly due to the fact that I didn't understand all aspects of the game.

1. d4 Nf6 2. c4 e6 3. Nc3 c5 (The Modern Benoni was my favorite opening at the time.

Although it is positionally "unsound," it makes for an interesting game.) 4. d5 exd 5. cxd d6

6. e4 g6 7. f4 (This is white's most aggressive continuation.) Bg7 8. Bb5+ (This bishop check is a disruptive move to black. The obvious Nbd7 and Bd7 both lead to difficult games for black after 9. e5!. After the text, black has four pieces on the queenside that don't coordinate very well with black's other pieces. Fortunately, white doesn't have any forcing moves to take advantage of this theme for several moves.) Nfd7 9. a4 (Necessary to prevent black from playing 9. ... a6 and 10. ... b5.) Qh4+ (At first glance, this seems like a spite check, but black normally develops his queen on e7 anyways, so why not loosen up white's kingside position?) 10. g3 (Kf1 has also been played, but the text is the preferred choice.) Qe7 11. Nf3 Na6 (Black can win a pawn with 11. ... Bxc3 12. bxc Qxe4, but after 13. Kf2! black has traded off his only active piece, the g7 bishop and opened himself to a deadly pin on the e-file. After 13. ... O-O 14. Re1, black is running out of places to place his queen and black's queenside will never have time to develop.)

12. O-O O-O 13. Kg2?? (The point of this weird looking move is to serve as a useful waiting move: The move restricts black's bishop from eventually developing on the h3 square; it frees the h1 square for a possible Rh1, h4, h5 kingside attack; and serves as a useful waiting move.

However, I believe, and Jesse agreed with me after the game, that the move is a lemon. More accurate is the 13. Re1! supporting the e5 advance, and freeing the f1 square for the b5 bishop to eventually retreat to Bf1 and go to the more useful g2 or h3 square.) Nb4 (Theory is divided on whether this knight belongs on b4 or c7. Nb4 is more annoying to white because it targets the weak light squares in white's position such as d3, c2, a2. However, in many variations, the b4 knight is a useless spectator when white launches his kingside attack. I still prefer Nb4 because Nc7 is a more passive move and less threatening.) 14. Re1 a6 (Putting a question to white's bishop.) 15. Bxd7 (Although this capture makes sense for white's upcoming plan, I feel that this bishop should be kept on the board. White has too many light square weaknesses in his position

e.g. a2, c2, d3, g2, h3. As I mentioned earlier, the bishop belongs back on the f1 square. However, in this position, Bf1 doesn't make much sense because of whites earlier 13. Kg2?) Bxd7 16. f5 (This move is only possible because black cannot occupy the e5 square with a knight.) c4! (Making whites light square weaknesses even more evident.) 17. Bg5 Bf6 (Most observers felt 17. ... f6 was a better move, but I would have had a hard time voluntarily imprisoning my g7 bishop.) 18. Bh6 Nd3! (This move disrupts whites entire piece coordination.) 19. Re2 Rfe8 20. Qd2 b5 (The battle lines are drawn, whites play in on the kingside and blacks is on the queenside.) 21. b4?? (This move is horrible. Jesse intends to concede the protected passed c-pawn in order to lock up blacks queenside counterplay.) a5! (After this move, white's game is busted. Black will be able to create two connected passed pawns no matter how white captures e.g. 22. bxa b4! and 22. axb axb.) 22. e5 (White realizes he is in deep trouble and decides to sacrifice a pawn to restrain blacks pieces and open kingside attacking channels.) dxe 23. fg hg? (Although this move doesn't lose, it makes blacks job of defending whites last-ditch kingside attack more difficult. Black needs to realize that all he needs to do is defend the final attack and the queenside passed pawns will decide the game. After 23. ... fxg! black can better organize a defense because the f7 pawn isn't a target and doesn't disrupt blacks pieces from defending the 7th rank.) 24. Ne4 ab 25. Rf1 Bh8 (Black isn't quite ready to trade dark-squared bishops due to the weak dark squares in blacks kingside position.) 26. Nh4 b3 (Perhaps not the most accurate plan, but it does divert some of whites army to the defense of the back rank.) 27. Bg5 Qb4 28. Qe3 b2 29. Bf6 b1Q 30. Rxb1 Qxb1 31. Bxh8 Nf4+ 32. gxf4 Kxh8 33. fxe Kg7 34. Qg5 Qd3 35. Re3 Qxd5 36. Qf6+ Kh7 37. Nf3 Kg8 38. Qh4 Bf5 39. Nf6+ Black Resigns

CHess MENTOR_{TM} REVIEW

by John Allensworth.

Chess Mentor_{TM} is a Windows_{TM}-based software product that I purchased about six months ago to assist me in studying chess. As an early purchaser of this multi-faceted chess product I received several progressively improved versions for the introductory price of $75.00. I also plopped down another $40.00 for instructional modules which are used within the Chess Mentor_{TM} program. As one would expect, I have been more pleased with each subsequent version and I am very pleased with the performance of the latest version which is 1.0. There is no other chess software product on the market that comes close to Chess Mentor_{TM}'s versatility, ease of use, and multitude of features. You have to see and try this product to fully appreciate how useful it is to chess study. It is impossible not to learn important aspects and techniques of chess play with Chess Mentor_{TM}!

Chess Mentor_{TM} is not a chess playing program. It is a wonderful instructional product where hundreds or even thousands of interesting and important positions are presented, one at a time, to the user and the user is expected to come up with the correct move(s). There is text commentary available to the user to get him or her focused on the relevant aspects of the position. There are additional hints available, if one so desires, including what piece is to be moved, what square is most important, degree of difficulty of the move at hand and the goal of the exercise. The user is scored on the degree of his success in the exercises or chess "Challenges" presented in the selected instructional Modules. The solving cycle represents in an unpredictable sequence the exercises where the chess enthusiast required the most help and where he scored the lowest. In this way, one gets useful repetitions to the problems in which one most needs more practice.

This is a fantastically enjoyable and versatile chess study program. If one were to duplicate the study of important positions, tactics, endings etc. as the Challenge Modules do it would take much more time to set up the positions on a chess board and then one would not have access to the carefully graduated hints in a variety of types that Chess Mentor_{TM} offers. The value and pleasure in studying chess with this fine program are limited only by the quality and comprehensiveness of the Chess Modules you have loaded into the program. Top quality chess players such as IM Jeremy Silman and IM John Grefe have contributed Chess Modules and more Chess Modules are in development. (I understand IM Jack Peters is working on a Rook Endings Set as time allows). Generally, I have found going through the selected modules (one can choose which modules to study and arrange the sequence according to one's preferences) to be useful and fun. I do think additional editing would be in order as there are occasional typos in the form of misspelling, mistaken text, i.e. Challenge no. 77 Square of Pawn mentions one of the four squares as g3 when correctly it would be f3. However, there are few mistakes and these are greatly outweighed by the utility and pleasure the user will derive from using Chess Mentor™ with its flexibility and ease of use. If the program continues to be supported by top chess players writing additional study modules, it could serve a chess player well throughout his chess playing career. Chess Mentor™ is suitable for any chess player with a computer running Windows™ with 8 megs of RAM and 8 MB of hard drive space available. I don't know if the program runs in Windows95 but I strongly suspect it does. I have only scratched the surface of what this top notch quality chess software product does and is capable of and I urge you to call Ralph Nagel, President of Aficionado, Inc. in Berkeley, CA at 1-800-465-9301 for more information. The review copy including additional modules Ralph Nagel of Aficionado, Inc. sent me is still unopened and available for sale from me at a special price of $100.00. It includes the Chess Mentor™ program which retails for $120.00 and additional modules which sell for $40.00. Call me at 701-352-0352 if you are interested in saving some money in purchasing Chess Mentor™.

North Dakota Chess History

By John H. Leitel

One of North Dakota's stronger players during the 1960's, eventually achieving a Class A rating, was Nestor Kohut, DDS. Dr. Kohut worked as a dentist at the State Hospital in Jamestown. He lived in Jamestown from the summer of 1960 until the spring of 1969 and was active in tournaments in both Dakotas as well as many Minnesota events. As the highest-scoring North Dakota resident Dr. Kohut was awarded the state title in the North Dakota Open at Minot in 1964.

Perhaps an even finer achievement came at the Aquatennial Open at Minneapolis in July of 1966. Rated just 1686 at the time, Kohut went 4-1 in a very strong field and earned a performance rating of 2174. He defeated two rated experts on the same day -- quite a feat in anybody's league! The writer also played in that tournament and recalled Kohut's feat quite well, little imagining that we would strike up a correspondence thirty years later!

Not many of Kohut's game scores exist today, but here is one over-the-board tussle we can study:

NESTOR KOHUT (Jamestown, ND) -- RON LIEN (Sioux Falls, SD)
South Dakota Open, Pierre, August 28, 1965

In 1969 Dr. Kohut took a new job at the State Hospital in Warren, Pennsylvania, and still lives there today. He has played comparatively little chess since moving back east, contenting himself with an occasional offhand game and playing over printed game scores. Turning 78 this month (December), he has been out of organized chess for quite a few years now.

Dr. Kohut was also active in postal chess, competing in the old Chess Review tourneys for several years during the mid-'60's. Here is a hard-fought victory from a Golden Knights' preliminary section:
